1. Background Information

The BE NCP received an urgent request of the BE State Secretary of Migration and Asylum regarding statistics on forced returns to Morocco and Algeria in 2013. Due to the high inflow of regular and also irregular citizens of these 2 countries to Belgium, these countries are of particular concern. As the Statistical Regulation does not make the distinction between forced and voluntary returns, these data are not usable to know the number of forced returns only.

Question:

How many irregular citizens of Morocco and Algeria did your country return (by force) to these countries in 2013? By preference, Dublin and bilateral take-overs (intra-EU transfers) should be excluded. Border refusals (returns from the borders) should be excluded anyway.

NK NK	United Kingdom	Yes	Enforced removal in the UK is where it has been established that a person has breached UK immigration laws and has no valid leave to remain within the United Kingdom. The Home Office enforces their departure to ensure they leave the UK. UK national figures show that the total number of enforced returns to Morocco in 2013 was 31 and 92 to Algeria in 2013. Please note that data on removals and voluntary departures are based on individual cases. Multiple removals of the same person within a year are counted as multiple departures. This data is provisional.
