

AD HOC QUERY ON 2021.43 Methods used for verifying family relationship when identifying the vulnerability of applicants for international protection during reception

Requested by EMN NCP Slovak Republic on 28 June 2021

Responses from Austria, Belgium, Bulgaria, Croatia, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Estonia, Finland, France, Germany, Hungary, Ireland, Italy, Latvia, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Malta, Netherlands, Poland, Portugal, Slovakia, Slovenia, Sweden (23 in Total)

Disclaimer:

The following responses have been provided primarily for the purpose of information exchange among EMN NCPs in the framework of the EMN. The contributing EMN NCPs have provided, to the best of their knowledge, information that is up-to-date, objective and reliable. Note, however, that the information provided does not necessarily represent the official policy of an EMN NCPs' Member State.

1. Background information

In the Slovak Republic, when asylum applicants claim to be a family, they are usually accommodated together. We have had a couple of cases though, where it was discovered at a later stage, that they were not actually family members. In this regard and with the aim of early identification e.g., a potential victim of human trafficking, sexual abuse or other situation that may result in vulnerability, the Slovak Republic would be interested what methods/procedures have Member States in place to determine and verify family relations of applicants (marital relations, parents-children), who came to their Member State, applied together for international protection and they have been consequently accommodated together as a family. The question concerns methods and procedures used outside of the scope of the asylum interview and family reunification process.

Information will be used by the Migration Office of the Slovak Ministry of Interior while revising the current tool for identification of vulnerability used by social workers in this area.

2. Questions

1. Does your Member State have methods/procedures used by helping professions (e.g., social workers, psychologists) to verify family relations between applicants for international protection (marital relations, parents-children)?

Available choices: Yes, No, Not Applicable

2. If you answered yes to question 1: a) could you please describe in more detail what methods/procedures and supporting evidence you are using? b) who is responsible for the process and which professions are involved in the process? c) If possible, please provide concrete examples and procedures. d) If such method is available (even in national language, e.g. list of questions) could you, please share it with us and attach it here?

We would very much appreciate your responses by 28 July 2021.

<sup>1</sup> If possible at time of making the request, the Requesting EMN NCP should add their response(s) to the query. Otherwise, this should be done at the time of making the compilation.

<sup>2</sup> A default "Yes" is given for your response to be circulated further (e.g. to other EMN NCPs and their national network members). A "No" should be added here if you do not wish your response to be disseminated beyond other EMN NCPs. In case of "No" and wider dissemination beyond other EMN NCPs, then for the Compilation for Wider Dissemination the response should be removed and the following statement should be added in the relevant response box: "This EMN NCP has provided a response to the requesting EMN NCP. However, they have requested that it is not disseminated further."

	EMN NCP Belgium	Yes	1. 2. 1. Could you please describe in more detail what methods/procedures and supporting evidence you are using? Registration phase: In Belgium it is the Immigration Office (IO) who registers the asylum application of an asylum seeker. When doing so, they register the application on the basis of the information and declarations of the asylum seeker and thus establishing the family links. Reception phase: Throughout their stay in the reception, social workers carry out individual assessments of the residents' needs. On this occasion, they consult their internal colleagues or external persons to make this multidisciplinary assessment. On this occasion, elements may be noted that allow the social worker to provide more targeted support. This can be the observation of the behaviour of the residents; informing and discussing with family members even separately, liaising with specific external actors/organisations in case there is a suspicion of human trafficking, domestic violence etc. b) Who is responsible for the process and which professions are involved in the process? When registering their application: When registering an application for international protection, each applicant is asked to indicate which family members are present in the Belgian or European Territory. If research has to be done, this is mainly done with the wellbeing of the person in mind and within the framework of the procedure. Establishing the bond of parental authority by the guardianship service [= c) Concrete example of procedure]: In principle, the parentage or protective measures such as adoption, guardianship and 'kafala' under Islamic law are confirmed by a (legalised) deed from the civil register or by a court decision. In case of doubt about the authenticity of these documents or if they are missing, proof can be provided through a DNA test. The persons accompanying the minor are then asked to provide the (legalised) original documents relating to

			their identity and civil status. In the course of the interview by the guardianship service, the guardianship service gathers information on the young person's family and living conditions, their links with the person accompanying them and the authenticity of the documents presented. Depending of the outcome of this procedure, a guardian can be appointed. At day 0 of the reception phase: If the Dispatching Service of Fedasil[1] notices, on day 0, during the arrival at the arrival centre, something worrying in relation to family links, they inform the social assistants of the arrival centre and request a social intake as a priority for these people. An interview with a psychologist may also be requested. Based on the observations of the appointed social assistant and perhaps psychologist, if necessary, appropriate ad hoc measures can be taken. This can include placing the persons in separate rooms or in separate centres and requesting to inform the Immigration Office and the Office of the Commissioner general for Refugees and Stateless persons (CGRS)[2]. It can also be requested that the IO and CGRS split the files in terms of the asylum procedure. Proceedings with the reception of people who say they are living together (family) without this being mentioned in their asylum application or in the 'waiting registry'[3]: If there is no mention of family ties (regarding couples) on the registration annex or in the 'waiting registry', the Dispatching Service relies on the declarations of the individuals. The Coordination Unit of Fedasil has noted that in extreme cases it can become clear during the stay in a reception centre that the case does not pertain a real family. As there is no mandated formal procedure in place and situations are dealt with on a case-by-case basis, officially it remains up to an asylum seeker to take action to correct this with the asylum authorities. The reception agency can then provide a separate reception location if living together is no longer possible. This does not pertain to a situation with minors involved (see the guardianship procedure above). Fedasil can also take order measures in the event of major problems. d) Sample of the Immigration Office registration form: "Family in Belgium (brothers, sisters, parents, partner, children)" <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>- Family relationship: name: ov-number[4]:</li><li>- Family relationship: name: ov-number:</li><li>- Family relationship: name: ov-number</li><li>- Family relationship: name: ov-number</li></ul>

A social worker is present still at the early stage of registration of the applicant. At the next stage, social interviews and psychological consultations are carried out. In the process of working with the applicants for international protection, the State Agency for Refugees with the Council of Ministers (SAR) involves employees specialised in social activities, as well as psychologists. When interviewing children, for instance, social experts ask questions about their parents' whereabouts. They ask questions also about maintaining contact with the parents, children's will to reunite with their families, the presence of relatives in the country, their relationships with the persons they travel with. Information is gathered also about any problems encountered during the journey or in the country in order to identify possible

The competent authorities (Registration officers, asylum service officers) receive the relevant documents of the applicants (marriage certificate, birth certificate of their children, family books, passports of the children, etc) in order to verify their statements. As soon as the applicants apply, the vulnerability interview is done for each one and separately. Our method in the reception center is to accomplish an entry interview with a social worker who is experienced enough to detect fraudsters. Add a. The social interview is thorough and focuses on the travel and social history of applicants for international protection. Social workers and recreational specialist are in close contact with clients and would detect any discrepancies. Add b. Social workers, recreational specialists and house assistant. All these professions work with applicants.

	EMN NCP Estonia	Yes	1. No 2. We do not have any specific procedures. Cases are carried out on a case by case principle. The Police and Border Guard Board have agreed with the Social Insurance Board that, if necessary, they will involve experts who will help assess whether, in addition to the social worker in the accommodation center, it is necessary to involve other experts, for example psychologists.                  Sofar there haven 't been cases where it turns out that a person who called him/herself a family member is not a member of a family. In general, a social worker and often a psychologist, is involved in family-related cases.
	EMN NCP Finland	Yes	1. No 2. As mentioned above, there are no specific methods to categorically verify the authenticity of family relationships. The reception centers mainly operate based on the information provided in the electronic database of the Finnish Immigration Service. Accommodation for families is arranged based on this information. If there is a suspicion on the veracity of family ties of applicants, the matter is of course looked into and referred to the social and healthcare professionals available in the receptions centers. Further steps will be determined based on the information and evidence at hand regarding the suspicion, as officials cannot take action based on pure speculation. If needed, the police are informed for further investigation. The person may also be referred to the Assistance System for Victims of Trafficking in Human Beings, if there is indication of exploitation of some kind. If there is a suspicion whether a child really is the child of the parent, the reception center may also avail the

	EMN NCP France	Yes	1. No Nevertheless, the French Office for the Protection of Refugees and Stateless Persons (OFPRA) has the capacity to refer to the Red Cross service for the restoration of family links: information in this respect is available at the OFPRA. This capacity is also presented during training courses on the unaccompanied minors’ asylum procedure for which OFPRA runs or co-runs for external stakeholders (e.g. Ministry of the Interior- UNHCR-OFPRA training courses since 2019, the OFPRA training courses for social workers in the city of Paris 2020-2021 etc.). Outside the OFPRA and regarding family reunification for unaccompanied minors refugees, there is no psychologists and/or social workers either involved in the procedure. In addition, there is a family reunification procedure under article 8 of the Dublin III Regulation, at the “single-desk contact point for asylum seekers” (GUDA) registration stage, in the presence of the unaccompanied minor’s legal representative, but this does not a priori involve psychologists and/or social workers, even if those involved in accompanying unaccompanied minor are gradually being trained in the existence of this procedure. 2. Proof of identity and proof of family ties of the asylum seeker’s family members are requested when the asylum application is registered at the “single-desk contact point for asylum seekers” (GUDA) of the Prefecture. The GUDAs are composed of agents from the prefecture and agencies of the French Office for Immigration and Integration (OFII). The asylum seekers submit information about their civil status and that of their family members. Then, The OFII interviews the asylum seeker to detect any potential vulnerabilities and sends this information to the OFPRA. Article R. 521-5 of the Code on Entry and Residence of Foreign Nationals and Right of Asylum (CESEDA) provides that foreign nationals applying for asylum must present information relating to their civil status and, where applicable, that of their spouse, their partner with whom they are in a civil union, or their

During the time spent together, for instance, at leisure activities for the accommodated persons (besides joint family programmes, separate free time activities organised for men, women, and children as well), social workers may get an impression about families and the family ties. If there is any doubt about family relationships, or any information on any kind of harm caused between family members, the social worker will report the case to his/her supervisor for consideration of an aimed investigation.</li> </ol>

In particular, pursuant to Article 5 of Law No. 47 of 7 April 2017, at the time when a minor comes into contact with or is reported to the police authorities, social services or other representatives of the local authority or judicial authority, the qualified personnel of the first reception facility conducts, under the direction of the services of the competent local authority or, assisted, by other organizations, bodies or associations with proven and specific experience in the protection of minors, an interview with the minor, aimed at investigating his or her family history and bringing out any other element useful for his or her protection. Since the first cognitive interview and especially in the context of the interview referred to in the aforementioned Article 5 of Law 47/2017, any profiles and indicators of trafficking and exploitation are assessed. In addition to the interviewer, an inter-cultural mediator, a legal expert and a psychologist are present. With regard to the management of cases of victims or presumed victims of trafficking, the immediate reporting of the arrival of potential victims of trafficking is made to the recognized anti-trafficking bodies active at the local level in the framework of the National Anti-Trafficking Plan, to the International Organization for Migration (IOM), or to the Anti-Trafficking toll-free number 800 290 290. Moreover, an operational vademecum has been adopted in order to provide those involved in the reception of Unaccompanied Foreign Minors with indications on procedures and good practices to be followed in the first phases, following the tracing on the territory and the disembarkation. Sometimes we have cases who they claimed to be relatives after or else they claim that they are not actually family members. In addition, we had cases of children accompanied by adults who claimed to be the parents upon arrival but at a later stage, they declare that they are not actually the parents but close relatives. These cases are assessed by social workers using different assessments, such as the Marriage Verification Assessment Tool and the Family Tree Chart. The family tree is a visual representation of a person's lineage, tracing relationships to common descendants. Certain cases are also being referred for a DNA testing to establish relationships especially in cases of children that are accompanied by adults claiming to be their relatives. A vulnerability assessment is also conducting with the families. The tool consist of initial observations, background information about the person referred, medical/health Conditions and wellbeing, psychological and psychosocial conditions, Indication of vulnerability linked to the journey (torture, violence due to armed conflict, FGM, SGBV, THB, chronic health concerns, and/or risk of harm, current situation and recommendations.
