The following responses have been provided primarily for the purpose of information exchange among EMN NCPs in the framework of the EMN. The contributing EMN NCPs have provided, to the best of their knowledge, information that is up-to-date, objective and reliable. Note, however, that the information provided does not necessarily represent the official policy of an EMN NCPs' Member State.

1. Background information

Part 1:

This is Part 1 of the ad-hoc query launched to gather information for the 2021 EMN inform on “EMN Inform on authorisations for the purpose of study - National policies and approaches on preventing and addressing misuse”, put forward by EMN Estonia and EMN the Netherlands. The 12 questions represent AHQ1 and AHQ2 as indicated in the concept note, but for structural reasons and in order to not overwhelm the experts, we have combined these in one set of questions. However, it will be counted as two ad-hoc queries for reporting purposes. Please consult the attached concept note for relevant background information prior to replying to the questions. In case of any queries, please contact the EMN Service Provider at emn@icf.com.

2. Questions

1. Has your Member State detected the following situations while assessing whether to issue an authorisation to reside for the purpose of study in the pre-arrival phase in the years 2017–2020? Please tick the box for each answer that applies to your Member State. Multiple 'yes'-answers can apply. If yes, please elaborate and provide examples in the comment box in Q2 after the answer possibilities of Q1.

Available choices: Yes, existence of evidence or serious and objective grounds enabling your Member State to establish that the third-country national concerned would reside for a purpose other than for study (please provide an example in the comment box of Q2);, Yes, the third-country national has provided documents that had been fraudulently acquired, falsified or were tampered with (please provide an example in the comment box of Q2);, Yes, the HEI concerned was established or operates for the main purpose of facilitating the entry of third-country nationals falling under the scope of the Students Directive for purposes other than study (please provide an example in the comment box of Q2);, Yes, other situations which your Member State considers as a misuse of an authorisation for the purpose of study (please describe these situations and explain why this is considered a misuse and constitutes a ground for rejection of the application in accordance with the Students and Researchers Directive in the comment box of Q2);, No, no such situations are detected in your Member State.

2. Comment box for Q1. For the applicable situations of Q1 please provide your explanations and examples. Please start with copying the applicable situation of the answer possibility and provide your elaboration immediately afterwards, so that it is clear to which situation your explanation applies. Example: Yes, existence of evidence or serious and objective grounds enabling your Member State to establish that the third-country national concerned would reside for a purpose other than for study; In [your Member State], evidence was found that.... it involved students that [...].

3. For the applicable situations of Q1 please provide, if available, statistics on the numbers of rejections of applications for authorisations for the purpose of study for the years 2017–2020. If possible, please provide a break down by the main underlying reasons explaining the rejection in this context, and the top-3 countries of origin of third-country nationals whose applications for an authorisation for the purpose of study have been rejected. A table showcasing the structure of the requested data has been added to the respective question in the concept note. If no statistics are available, please elaborate on the scale of the problem if possible and explain the evidence base for your assessment of the scale of the problem.

4. Post arrival: Has your Member State detected the following situations in relation to authorisations issued for the purpose of study in the post-arrival phase in the years 2017–2020? Please tick the box for each answer that applies to your Member State. Multiple 'yes'-answers can apply. If yes, please elaborate and provide examples in the comment box of Q5 after the answer possibilities of Q4.

Available choices: Yes, the authorisation issued for the purpose of study was used for a purpose other than study, i.e. exercise of an employed/self-employed activity (please provide an example in the comment box of Q5);, Yes, documents have been fraudulently acquired, falsified or were tampered with (please provide an example in the comment box of Q5);, Yes, the HEI concerned was established or operates for the main purpose of facilitating the entry of third-country nationals falling under the scope of the Students Directive for purposes other than study (please provide an example in the comment box of Q5);, Yes, failure to fulfil legal obligations by the HEI relevant for the combat of misuse, (e.g. failure to report on the change/loss of the student status of a third-country national to the authorities where there is a clear obligation to do so, which enabled your Member State to conclude on a misuse linked to the purpose of the authorisation – (please describe these situations and explain why this is considered a misuse and constitutes a ground for withdrawal/refusal of renewal of the authorisation in accordance with the Students and Researchers Directive in the comment box of Q5); Yes, other situations which your Member State considers as misuse linked to an authorisation for the purpose of study. (Please describe these situations and explain why this is considered a misuse and constitutes a ground for withdrawal/refusal of renewal of the authorisation in accordance with the Students and Researchers Directive in the comment box of Q5); No, no such situations have been detected in your Member State.

5. Comment box for Q4. For the applicable situations of Q4 please provide your explanations and examples. Please start with copying the applicable situation of the answer possibility and provide your elaboration immediately afterwards so that it is clear to which situation your explanation applies. Example: Yes, the HEI concerned was established or operates for the main purpose of facilitating the entry of third-country nationals falling under the scope of the Students Directive for purposes other than study; In [your Member State], evidence was found that .. it involved students that [..].

6. For all the applicable situations of Q4, please provide, if available, statistics on the withdrawal/refusal of renewal of authorisations for the years 2017-2020. If possible, please provide a break down by main underlying reasons explaining the withdrawal/refusal of renewal in this context, and top-3 countries of origin of third-country nationals whose authorisations for study have been withdrawn or renewals refused on this basis. A table showcasing the structure of the requested data has been added to the respective question in the concept note. If no statistics are available, please elaborate on the scale of the issue if possible and explain the evidence base for your assessment of the scale of the problem.

7. Overall strategy : In which phase (if any) are efforts to combat such misuse of authorisations for the purpose of study prioritised by your Member State? Preventing intended misuse in the pre-arrival phase or addressing such misuse in the post-arrival phase - and why is this particular phase prioritised? (e.g. prioritising/focussing on a specific phase because of a cost-benefit analysis, effectiveness, convenience etc.).

8. Prevention of misuse (pre-arrival): 8. What elements/situations trigger Member States to look into specific cases of (potential) misuse (as defined in the concept note) by applicants of an authorisation for the purpose of study and what methods/assessment criteria are used to prevent such potential misuse (please see situations referred to in your response to Q1 and Q3) of authorisations for the purpose of study in the pre-arrival phase? (e.g. interviews, assessing the validity of documents, assessing the fulfilment of relevant requirements by the HEI etc.)

9. What organisations are involved at the pre-arrival phase with the prevention of such potential misuse of authorisations for the purpose of study? (e.g. HEIs, consulates, migration authorities, Public Employment Services, etc.)

10. What are the responsibilities and obligations of the organisations identified in the question above in relation to prevention of such potential misuse at pre-arrival phase?

11. How is the cooperation between HEIs/other organisations/entities/Member States' authorities organised at the pre-arrival phase to prevent such potential misuse?

12. Are there any good practices / lessons learnt in your Member State for preventing such potential misuse at pre-arrival phase (identified, for example, through desk-based research - studies or evaluation reports - conducted in your Member State)?

We would very much appreciate your responses by 28 September 2021.

¹ If possible at time of making the request, the Requesting EMN NCP should add their response(s) to the query. Otherwise, this should be done at the time of making the compilation.

² A default "Yes" is given for your response to be circulated further (e.g. to other EMN NCPs and their national network members). A "No" should be added here if you do not wish your response to be disseminated beyond other EMN NCPs. In case of "No" and wider dissemination beyond other EMN NCPs, then for the Compilation for Wider Dissemination the response should be removed and the following statement should be added in the relevant response box: "This EMN NCP has provided a response to the requesting EMN NCP. However, they have requested that it is not disseminated further."

In doing so, it must be assessed based on the circumstances of the specific individual case whether such a request appears necessary and appropriate. This will certainly be the case if, for example, there are suspicions regarding the authenticity of certain documents. In this case, the circumstances of the case must be investigated with the involvement of the Austrian representation authority in the country of origin, or the certification of documents must be arranged. • Language skills: For applications for admission to studies, knowledge of the German language at least at level A2 of the CEFR is required. The aim of this regulation is to ensure that only those who are genuinely interested in studying and training seek admission to a degree programme. The university is responsible for checking whether the applicant has the appropriate language skills as part of the admission procedure. If the Austrian representation authorities during the certification of foreign documents or the settlement and residence authorities during the application for a residence permit for students have doubts about the authenticity and correctness of the language diploma, the university must be informed by the settlement and residence authority. • Involvement of a lawyer of trust: One possibility of checking the documents submitted from the home

The higher education institution is available to support. - (Foreign) application at the responsible Austrian representation authority: After arranging an appointment at the Austrian representation authority, the applicant must submit the application in person at the Austrian representation authority and submit all required documents with the application. The Austrian representation authority generally only checks the application for completeness. An assessment of the content is reserved for the settlement and residence authority (domestic authority). However, in the case of identity and civil status documents, whose harmlessness, authenticity, or correctness is doubted by the Austrian representation authorities, they can initiate a document check on their own initiative. The Austrian representation authority can also notify the domestic authority of content-related inaccuracies, the assessment of which is incumbent on the domestic authority. The Austrian representation authority forwards the application to the competent settlement and residence authority in Austria. The settlement and residence authority checks the content of the application. 			proceedings are irrelevant (Art. 23 para 3 Settlement and Residence Act). - (Domestic) application at the responsible settlement and residence authority: All third-country nationals may apply for a "student" residence permit in Austria after lawful entry and during their lawful stay (Art. 21 para 2 subpara 6 Settlement and Residence Act). The student must personally submit the application to the authority and submit all necessary documents with the application. The settlement and residence authority checks the content of the application. If there is justified suspicion, it may be necessary in individual cases to have original documents checked for their correctness or authenticity. One possibility of checking documents submitted from the home country is to call in a suitable lawyer of trust. The responsible Austrian representation authority acts in cooperation with the respective responsible settlement and residence authority or instructs the settlement and residence authority to arrange for a review by a suitable lawyer of trust. The latter will draw up a report, but the settlement and residence authority is not bound by it. The domestic authorities' official duties to investigate circumstances located abroad are often in conflict with the possibilities that are actually and legally available to the authorities. Therefore, in relevant cases, the applicant must be required to cooperate (Art. 23 Settlement and Residence Act). --- Source: Ministry of the Interior 12. Yes. 			2. Yes, existence of evidence or serious and objective grounds enabling your Member State to establish that the third-country national concerned would reside for a purpose other than for study. The students have to answer a questionnaire when applying for a visa, except in certain cases (such as PhD students, students who come on the basis of a bilateral university agreement or who have a Belgian/regional scholarship). When assessing the questionnaire, it sometimes appears that the student cannot sufficiently explain the content of the studies and, therefore, cannot sufficiently motivate what the reasons of his/her stay are. Yes, the third-country national has provided documents that had been fraudulently acquired, falsified or were tampered with. We have noticed that several persons from Cameroon present falsified documents to inscribe for Belgian higher education and to obtain a visa (nonetheless, this is also the case for other nationalities). Most often, they are falsified diplomas or altered exam results from Cameroon (which make them seem to be excellent students). On the basis of preliminary numbers (definitive numbers will arrive in the upcoming weeks), we established that in 5% of the applications there was a suspicion of fraud. Last year, this amounted to 12%. Nonetheless, suspicion of fraud only constitutes a first step and we have encountered practical obstacles to obtain the necessary information to move from a suspicion to an actual establishment of fraud. When an application is refused on the basis of suspicion of fraud, this can be appealed at the Council of Alien Law Litigation (CALL). 3. <table border="0" style="width: 100%; border-collapse: collapse;"> <thead> <tr> <th colspan="2"></th> <th colspan="4" style="text-align: center;">Number of applications rejected</th> <th></th> </tr> <tr> <th colspan="2"></th> <th style="text-align: center;">2017</th> <th style="text-align: center;">2018</th> <th style="text-align: center;">2019</th> <th style="text-align: center;">2020</th> <th style="text-align: center;">Top 3 countries of origin</th> </tr> </thead> <tbody> <tr> <td style="text-align: right;">Total</td> <td>Total: 2005 Cameroon:956 Morocco:267 Congo:134</td> <td style="text-align: center;">Total: 2165 Cameroon:1129 Morocco:313 Congo:96</td> <td style="text-align: center;">Total: 2433 Cameroon:1314 Morocco:335 Cogo:96</td> <td style="text-align: center;">Total: 1967 Cameroon:1099 Morocco:304 Congo:96</td> <td></td> <td style="text-align: center;">Country 1: Country 2: Country 3:</td> </tr> <tr> <td style="text-align: right;">Reason 1 (General)</td> <td>Lack of sufficient resources</td> <td></td> <td></td> <td></td> <td></td> <td style="text-align: center;">Country 1: Country 2: Country 3:</td> </tr> <tr> <td style="text-align: right;">Reason 2</td> <td>Sufficient elements in the visa application</td> <td></td> <td></td> <td></td> <td></td> <td style="text-align: center;">Country 1:</td> </tr> </tbody> </table>			Number of applications rejected							2017	2018	2019	2020	Top 3 countries of origin	Total	Total: 2005 Cameroon:956 Morocco:267 Congo:134	Total: 2165 Cameroon:1129 Morocco:313 Congo:96	Total: 2433 Cameroon:1314 Morocco:335 Cogo:96	Total: 1967 Cameroon:1099 Morocco:304 Congo:96		Country 1: Country 2: Country 3:	Reason 1 (General)	Lack of sufficient resources					Country 1: Country 2: Country 3:	Reason 2	Sufficient elements in the visa application					Country 1:

Yes, the authorisation issued for the purpose of study was used for a purpose other than study, i.e. exercise of an employed/self-employed activity (please provide an example in the comment box of Q5); We had cases in which an intermediate person already established working contracts for nurses from India who came to Belgium for purposes of study. The intermediate received large amounts for the signing of the contracts and the specific study-immigration procedure was re-evaluated because of this situation. At the time, incoming students were temporarily not allowed to enter. From the other side, we conducted a follow-up sample of files from Cameroonians who arrived in 2016 and 2017 for study purposes. From the 2016 sample, we learned that 20% of Cameroonians who came to Belgium for reasons of study eventually ended up in a family reunification status. It is not known whether these person continued their studies. Nonetheless, it is hard to deduct a general rule from this sample, as it does not necessarily reflect the situation as it is. The same study was done for people who arrived for study purposes in 2017. However, in this case only 5% of the people had asked for family reunification status and 20% had not asked for any status (which might indicate that some are still going to ask for family reunification status). This questionnaire covers the student's past education and work experiences, his/her intentions to study in Belgium, the studies planned in Belgium, his/her professional project (career perspectives) and the funding of his/her stay in Belgium). The aim of the questionnaire is to check the student's motivation to follow higher education and the coherence of his/her professional project. 8. On the basis of the information provided in the questionnaire, the Immigration Office judges whether the student seems to have a real study plan in Belgium. However, the Immigration Office does keep not statistics by reason of visa refusal. Additional: In sensitives country, like Cameroon currently, the Immigration Office had added an interview done by an external organization, ViaBel (formerly known as Campus Belgium), which gives a final opinion on the visa application. In analysing the case, the Immigration Office considers the results of the questionnaire and the interview to make a decision on the issuance of a student visa. Academic interview*: the plausibility interview aims to identify "authentic, but not truthful" diplomas (or certificates) which were obtained by document fraud, for example. After the plausibility interview has been successfully completed, the APS certificate is drawn up, which refers to the screened diplomas and gives a non-binding indication of the candidate's oral proficiency in English during the interview. The Chinese student with the APS certificate may then apply for a student visa at the Belgian Embassy or the Belgian Consulate-General in China and may effectively enroll at a Belgian institute of higher education. 9. Consulates: 'First line': They can deliver the visa (but not refuse to deliver) and they perform a check if all the documents are in order and all the conditions are fulfilled (they receive documents such as a medical certificate and a proof of good conduct, if the student is over 21 years old). Immigration Office: Can refuse to deliver a visa in case not all conditions are fulfilled and they can grant a visa if all conditions are fulfilled. HEI: can 'admit' the student to their study program if certain conditions are met (such as educational requirements and medical insurance, ...) Special procedures: See previous answer. 10. (See previous answer) 11. This question is nearly impossible to answer given our complicated state structure, the divide between public and private education and the different 'domes' under which certain structures are organised. 12. The Immigration Office sends 'officers' to the responsible state structures abroad (consulates) to teach the visa section how to handle visas (amongst others for study purposes). The idea is to educate the people at the consulates, while working with them.

			7. Preventing misuse in the pre-arrival phase and detecting misuse in the post-arrival phase are equally important from the public order and national security perspective, thus emphasis is on both – prevention (e.g. annual risk analyses in cooperation with relevant authorities, cooperation with HIE-s and vocational education institutions for raising awareness and knowledge on risks and detecting fraud) and detection (e.g. cooperation with HIE-s and vocational education institutions regarding the notification obligation, assessment of trustworthiness of HIE-s and vocational education institutions). 8. Residence permit for study can be applied for either at a foreign representation/embassy of Estonia or at a service office of the Police and Border Guard Board. If the applicant needs a visa first, the list of additional required documents depending on the purpose of stay is non-exhaustive and the application must be submitted in person. Representation/foreign embassy also has the right to call the applicant for an interview. During the application process, relevant authorities verify whether the necessary documents for application have been submitted. In case of any deficiencies or in need for additional information, the applicant will be contacted and may be interviewed (e.g. to check on language proficiency, academic background etc). Regarding document fraud, HEIs as well as authorities use Estonian ENIC/NARIC services in order for the educational qualifications obtained abroad to be recognized. Relevant authorities cooperate on establishing the trustworthiness/reliability on the HEI in question. When assessing the reliability of an educational institution, Police and Border Guard Board will take into account violations of obligations arising from the Aliens Act as well as other factors that are important from the perspective of reducing the possibility of misuse. Aliens Act § 402 defines the assessment of reliability as follows: Subsection 1 - The Police and Border Guard Board may provide an assessment of the unreliability of an employer, educational institution, internship provider or other person (hereinafter assessment) if an alien comes to a person or if the obligations of a sponsor provided for in this Act apply to the person (hereinafter in this section sponsor); Subsection 2 - A consular officer or the Police and Border Guard Board may take into account the assessment of the sponsor with regard to an act to be performed or administrative act issued relating to a future long-stay visa application, application for extension of stay, application for registration of short-term employment, application for residence permit or application for extension of residence permit; Subsection 3- Violations of obligations imposed on the basis of this Act and other reasons on the basis of which there are reasonable grounds to doubt the reliability of the sponsor shall be taken into account upon providing the assessment.

			Subsection 4 - An assessment shall be issued for a period of validity of up to one year. If a sponsor is assessed as being unreliable, the assessment will remain valid for one year and will be taken into account during the handling of the sponsor's applications for entry permits for aliens. An educational establishment being categorized as unreliable would directly affect aliens who have or are planning to come to study in Estonia. If a sponsor is declared unreliable, Police and Border Guard Board may refuse granting a long-term visa or residence permit to an alien or declare their long-term visa invalid, making assessments of a sponsor's reliability important information for foreigners as well. 9. HEIs, vocational higher education institutions, consulates, Estonian Police and Border Guard Board, Estonian Internal Security Service and to some extent also the non-profit organizations (e.g. Education and Youth Board of Estonia that manages a national guide called Study in Estonia). 10. HIE-s: responsibilities and obligations are set in the Aliens Act as follows: § 174 subsection 1 - the educational institution where an alien who was granted a temporary residence permit for study, the institution conducting the traineeship, the international student organization that intermediated the traineeship of an alien in Estonia and an institution or organization within the framework of whose youth project or program an alien was issued a temporary residence permit for voluntary service activities shall have the obligations of a sponsor provided for in this Act. § 287 - An educational institution is required to notify the Police and Border Guard Board of a failure of an alien who has received a temporary residence permit for study and an alien studying in Estonia on the basis of a long-stay visa or residence permit to commence the studies within the prescribed term, of noncompliance with the curriculum to the extent required for holding a residence permit for study, of the exmatriculation from the educational institution, of the discontinuation or disruption of studies or of the entry into the contract of traineeship with an alien or of the discontinuation of the concluded contract of traineeship. §291 subsection 1 - A sponsor is required to verify if an alien who has been invited to Estonia by sponsor has a legal basis for the stay in Estonia. HIE-s must ensure that the language proficiency and academic background of the student meets all necessary requirements. Consulates and Police and Border Guard Board process submitted applications and verify documents presented, also make sure that all necessary requirements are met, conduct additional interviews or require additional information/documents if deficiencies are found.

			Authorities (Police and Border Guard Board and Internal Security Services) ensure that requirements set also meet the criteria for public order and national security and that issued ground for entry, stay and purpose is not violated. In case (possible) misuse is detected, relevant actions follow (refusal or revocation of residence permit, obligation to leave etc.). Non-profit organizations offer support and guidelines for commencing the studies and settling in Estonia. 11. Cooperation include trainings and information days in order to raise awareness of HIEs on possible misuse, high-risk third countries, detecting fraudulent documents etc. HIEs, migration and internal security authorities cooperate on a daily and if necessary, ad-hoc basis, if any questions arise during the pre-arrival phase (clarifying real intentions for applying a visa/residence permit, language proficiency, academic background, submitted documents, background checks, other possible risk factors). Police and Border Guard Board as well as Estonian Internal Security Service provide risk analysis and publications on changes regarding migratory pathways. 12. In addition to annual risk analyses in relation to migration, Police and Border Guard Board conducts regular ad-hoc analysis e.g. analysis on educational migration, analysis on legal and illegal migration (and accompanying risks). Studies/research/reports related to educational migration are conducted by the Estonian Statistics, both independently and in cooperation with other authorities e.g. Ministry of Interior has ordered analyses/studies for policy making purposes. Good practices include enhanced cooperation between migration authorities and HIEs for raising awareness on risks regarding foreign students (on misuse, high-risk third countries, detecting fraud etc.) and providing free migration counselling via special consultants by the Police and Border Guard Board for both students and educational establishments. The main function of the consultants is to support foreigners in settling in Estonia and to serve as a partner to employers, business community and education institutions and other parties who invite foreign nationals to Estonia. If necessary, consultants can be invited to trainings and information days.

Yes, existence of evidence or serious and objective grounds enabling your Member State to establish that the third-country national concerned would reside for a purpose other than for study: There have been occasional cases in Finland, where a person had submitted a residence permit application on the basis of studying, although the actual purpose of stay has been other than studying. In these cases the applicant has had family relations in Finland and submitting a study permit application has been a means of subverting income requirements, which is higher for family residence permits. Also, in some instances upon submitting a residence permit extension it has been revealed that the applicant has no intention to study but merely extend their right to stay. Such cases are, however, very rare and therefore no statistics exist. Yes, the third-country national has provided documents that had been fraudulently acquired, falsified or were tampered with: Instances of falsified, fake or altered documents are constant. These cases have mostly to do with income attachments, i.e. fake or falsified bank statements or other proof of sufficient funds. 3. See concept note attached for statistical data. 4. Yes, the authorisation issued for the purpose of study was used for a purpose other than study, i.e. exercise of an employed/self-employed activity (please provide an example in the comment box of Q5); 5. Yes, the authorisation issued for the purpose of study was used for a purpose other than study, i.e. exercise of an employed/self-employed activity; The Finnish authorities have detected several cases where persons have worked more hours than their residence permit allows. The residence permit for studies allows to work for an average of 25 hours per week during the academic terms. However, there is generally not sufficient information to deduce whether the main reason for entering the country has been work as opposed to conducting studies. Yes, the authorisation issued for the purpose of study was used for a purpose other than study, i.e. exercise of an employed/self-employed activity; In Finland, there are isolated incidents where persons have applied for asylum or have stayed for work after negative decision to the application to extend the residence permit for studies. Yes, documents have been fraudulently acquired, falsified or were tampered with; In Finland, there is a single incident of a possible case of falsifying documents. This concerns a falsified residence permit document that has been presented to the educational institution.

			6. See the attached concept note on Q1 for statistical data. 7. Monitoring of potential misuses is done in various stages of immigration. Pre-screening of applications is performed in Finnish embassies around the world. Some embassies also have an ILO (Immigration Liaison Officer) posted there to perform risk assessments and gather information regarding irregular migration. Post-arrival, the cases of misuse are usually revealed when a person is submitting an application for an extension of their residence permit. 8. Interviewing the applicants in person are one of the key steps in assessing the overall risk of misuse of the application. The applicant is generally asked about how much do they actually know about their enrolled study program, the educational institution they are about to join and about Finland as a country (e.g. cost of living etc.) Aside from interviews, the applicants' documents are scrutinized first by immigration officers in the embassies and, if a further confirmation is required, the officers may consult an ILO (immigration liaison officer) present in the embassy for further authenticity checks, or they may forward the suspicious documents to the Finnish Immigration Service, who makes the ultimate decision. Risk profiling is based on intelligence gathered by the ILOs, as well as accumulated institutional information of the Embassies and their immigration officers. 9. The Finnish Embassies play a pivotal role in the pre-arrival prevention as they meet the applicants in person and see the documents in original. The Finnish Immigration Service, who ultimately makes the decisions on the applications, consults the embassies regarding individual applicants and the Embassies consult the Immigration Service when needed. 10. 			recorded. In Germany decisions on granting or withdrawing a residence permit are made by the local responsible foreigners authorities. If individual cases of abuse become known, they are not recorded on state or federal level. 7. Possible reasons for refusal, including a possible intended misuse of the residence permit applied for, are examined by the competent diplomatic mission abroad with the involvement of the competent local foreigners authority in Germany before the residence permit is issued. In addition, the local foreigners authority regularly verifies after entry whether all conditions for issuance continue to be met. If there are indications of possible misuse, they investigate those. 8. The plausibility of the purpose of stay is also examined in the context of the visa application. For this purpose, the previous (educational) biography and the existing language skills are taken into account. The diplomatic mission abroad also takes into account specific knowledge about the country of origin (quality of universities, migration pressure, etc.). Reasons for an in-depth examination would be, for example • poor performance at school or unsuccessful studies in the home country, • Long duration of the study-preparatory stay combined with uncertain financing• clear discrepancy between the costs of the studies and the income situation• Submitting several visa applications or erratic and unfounded changes of subjects to be studied• Lack of knowledge about the intended course of the study programme• Indications that give rise to suspicion of circumvention of family reunion regulations (e.g. coinciding with family reunion of close relatives)• Migration pressure in the country of origin or country of residence 9. The competent diplomatic mission abroad, the local foreigners authority and, if applicable, security authorities are involved in the examination of granting a visa. In case of doubt, any supervisory authorities that are more relevant in specific cases may also be involved, for example in the examination of the receiving higher education institution. The receiving higher education institution verifies whether the admission requirements for the study programme are met. 10. The competent diplomatic mission abroad checks • the plausibility of the purpose of residence on the basis of the previous (educational) biography and language skills,• the general conditions for granting the residence permit (e.g. securing a livelihood),• the receiving higher education institution (it must be a state or state-recognised higher education institution or a comparable educational institution),• admission to study at the receiving higher education institution (this must be provided in order to be entitled to be granted a visa.

The diplomatic mission abroad involves the local foreigners authority and, if necessary, the security authorities and decides whether other authorities or the host university should be involved. In addition, the diplomatic missions in selected countries (China and Vietnam) in cooperation with the German Academic Exchange Service have established an academic inspection office (Akademische Prüfstelle) with the aim of supporting the visa granting process in countries with high demand to study in Germany.. Education providers must apply for their course/degree programme to be included on the ILEP and fulfil a number of criteria. Students can only secure a residence permission if their course/degree is listed on ILEP. The list was introduced to better regulate immigration by identifying and monitoring the higher education and English language programmes for which immigration permissions could be granted. The ILEP is regularly updated and monitored by the Department of Justice.• A seven-year cap on permission to reside in Ireland as a student and progression must be demonstrated.• Defined limits on the student work concession. Students are permitted to work 20 hours per week during term time and 40 hours outside of term time. The reforms defined this latter period as 40 hours in June, July, August and September, and from 15th December to 15th January inclusive. The specification of months was introduced to facilitate monitoring of this work concession.• An obligation to attend courses, which must be evidenced when renewing a permission. Education providers should communicate non-attendance to the immigration authorities.• Introduction of an enhanced inspection regime, including a greater inspection function for the Immigration Service (ISD) and GNIB to review attendance management systems and student immigration permission compliance.• Learner protections were introduced to ensure that where a college or school closes, protections are in place for the affected students, such as a plan for the replacement of courses free of charge or some form of insurance or bond arrangement with a financial institution to refund the student. A learner protection regime is one of the conditions required for the inclusion of a course on the ILEP. Visa-required nationals Degree programme students who are visa-required nationals must apply for a Long Stay 'D' visa – Study. Not applicable. 7. Background Note on student immigration reform in Ireland Before 2011, non-EEA student immigration in Ireland was less regulated than today. In 2009, the Government launched a review of the student immigration framework which according to the then Minister for Justice, Equality & Law Reform related to tackling misuse: “The vast majority of our service providers offer a quality product and it is everyone's interest to root out those who do not or who engage in abuses of the system. From an immigration perspective we also have to be satisfied that people coming to Ireland do so for a genuine purpose and comply with any conditions applicable to their stay” [1]. After a public consultation, the Inter-Departmental Committee on Non-EEA Student Immigration which had been formed to manage the review, published recommendations in 2010 which became the foundation of the new immigration regime which was introduced in January 2011. This new regime included the creation of a differentiated approach to immigration for the purpose of study, divided between ‘degree programme’ non-EEA students and ‘language or non-degree programme’ non-EEA students. The reforms also saw the introduction of restrictions in the time that a non-EEA student can spend in Ireland and stricter criteria for students applying for, and renewing, a residence permit. Since 2011, the non-EEA student education and immigration framework has seen further regulatory reforms, particularly in the period between 2014 and 2015 which saw the introduction of several reforms to the student immigration regime. Ireland’s most recent international education strategy, Irish educated, globally connected: An international education strategy for Ireland 2016–2020 expanded on progress made following the first strategy and set out strategic actions to advance the internationalization of education in Ireland over a five-year period. These actions included a more restrictive list of eligible programmes for student immigration purposes, an enhanced inspection and compliance regime and revised terms of the student work concession. For more information, see the EMN Ireland study (2019) ‘Attracting and Retaining International Higher Education Students: Ireland’ which provides a detailed review of the development of policy measures in place to tackle misuse of authorisations for study purposes.

But in some cases it is established that the student has not attended university, has not settled debts, but has worked. 6. The three main grounds for refusing to re-issue a residence permit to third-country students are, firstly, that not all the documents required by law have been submitted. Secondly, a foreigner has no financial resources. On the other hand, the reason for revoking a student's residence permit is often that the circumstances on the basis of which the student has received a residence permit no longer exist or have changed, ie the student has received a residence permit due to studies but does not attend and is expelled; it is often established that the real purpose of requesting a residence permit from a foreigner does not correspond to that indicated in the submitted documents. Most of them are third-country nationals who have been issued residence permits due to studies, who have come from Pakistan, India and the Republic of Uzbekistan. 7. The competent authorities of the Republic of Latvia take all possible preventive measures so that all documents submitted by a foreigner requesting a residence permit and possible third-country nationals are detected before the decision is made. Before arriving in Latvia, foreigners are interviewed at the embassy and in case there is a possible risk that the foreigner is not going to study but for a different purpose, a report is prepared. After that the documents submitted by foreigners are checked by an officials of the Office of Citizenship and Migration Affairs. If the grounds have been established, the residence permit is not issued to the foreigner in question. If a foreigner resides abroad, he or she has no grounds to enter Latvia. If a foreigner resides in Latvia, he or she is either given an order to leave. 8. See the answer to Q7. 9. Academic Education Center evaluates the previous education (diploma) of a third-country citizen. State Security Service makes an assessment of the potential risk of terrorism (only for citizens from increased risk of terrorism countries). The duties of these organizations are to prevent the possible illegal entry of foreigners who apply for a residence permit in connection with studies into the Republic of Latvia and to prevent the risks of illegal immigration. 11. If a foreigner enters from a country that is on the relevant list as a country whose citizens must be checked by the state security authorities, then after all the immigration risk, the embassy sends the documents to the Office of Citizenship and Migration Affairs, which is obliged to send the submitted documents to the State Security Service. In case the State Security Service needs additional information, it requests the Office of Citizenship and Migration Affairs to obtain additional information about the foreigner or to request documents. If the State Security Service provides an opinion that a residence permit cannot be issued to a particular foreigner, the Office has grounds to refuse to issue a residence permit. In case of suspicion, the Office of Citizenship and Migration Affairs is also entitled to forward to this authority the documents of those foreigners who are not obliged to check. 12. During last 5-7 years Ministry of Foreign Affairs as well as the Office of Citizenship and Migration Affairs have tried to increase the level of responsibility of HEI's as well as their awareness of the potential risks and misuses. Every year an informative seminar is organized by MFA where all HEI's operating in Latvia are invited to participate. During these seminars an information on changes in legislation are explained as well as various problems discussed. HEI's have an opportunity to inform on their problems regarding cooperation with state institutions and vice versa. The memorandum, mentioned in the Q10 is a good example as well: https://www.izm.gov.lv/en/agreement-good-practice-attracting-foreign-students HEI' s are held responsible for misuse of migration legislation (for example, if a student is not studying and starts working in some other EU country from which s/he is returned to Latvia, HEI who invited this particular student, has to cover the expenses of return procedure). Reporting on students who are not attending lectures is one of the duties HEI's have to fulfill.

It was determined that a foreigner who had been issued several residence permits for study purposes was characterized by the receiving higher education institution as a failing student (he had failed several exams and had not shown up for some others) and that his poor performance was not justified by objective reasons such as illness, unplanned changes in personal life circumstances, etc. The totality of circumstances allowed the authorities to reach a conclusion that the student did not seek to obtain a university education in Lithuania but was merely interested in obtaining a residence permit and enjoying the associated rights. Therefore, a decision was made to refuse to reissue him a temporary residence permit. 6. The case described in question 5 involved a national of Georgia who was refused a reissue of a temporary residence permit. There is no statistical data on temporary residence permits refused for such reasons. In general, temporary residence permits are withdrawn from foreign students when it is determined that they do not fulfil the requirements for the permit issued for the purpose of studies or when they terminate their studies or if they do not arrive to study. Temporary residence permits can also be withdrawn from those students who, once enrolled in a study program at a higher education institution, fail to earn 40 academic credits per year for no justifiable reason, as well as those who violate work restrictions (no more than 20 a week, except during the summer holidays and during the internship as part of the study program). Furthermore, it should be noted that, in practice, higher education institutions occasionally neglect to inform the Migration Department under the Ministry of the Interior about cases when foreign students who have been issued a temporary residence permit terminate or fail to commence their studies. Rather, it is the foreigner's termination of studies or non-arrival that provides the basis for the withdrawal of the temporary residence permit. The decision to withdraw the temporary residence permit is taken only after the Migration Department itself determines that the foreigner has indeed terminated his/her studies or did not arrive to start their studies. 7. The efforts to combat the misuse of authorizations issued for the purpose of study focus on both pre-arrival prevention and post-arrival control. Efforts to control after arrival are more effective because it is easier to identify cases of potential misuse once the foreigner is within the country. For example, during the post-arrival phase, it can be investigated whether the foreigner attends lectures and actually studies or whether the true purpose of his/her arrival is other than the one officially declared. 8. When examining each application for a temporary residence permit, the Migration Department carries out an investigation, which aims to determine whether the foreigner fulfils the requirements and the grounds for the temporary residence permit and whether there are any grounds for refusing to issue the temporary residence permit. In the course of this investigation, the Migration Department checks the documents submitted by the foreigner, verifies in the state registries and information systems the data on the foreigner and the higher education institution, as well as sends inquiries to other state institutions (e.g., the State Border Guard Service under the Ministry of the Interior to find out whether the foreigner poses a risk of illegal migration). In case of issues with the information submitted by the foreigner, the Migration Department may contact both the intermediating higher education institution and other legal and natural persons for additional information. 			costs. One of the typical false or tampered documents that the agents of the Foreigners Department of the Directorate of Immigration are confronted with is the proof of financial statement of support. There have been cases where the applicant had falsified an acceptance letter of the University of Luxembourg, but this is very rare. In addition, article 56 (1) 1) of the Immigration Law states that the Student's residence permit shall be granted by the Minister for study purposes to a third-country national if he/she has been admitted to an institution of higher education for the purpose of pursuing, as his/her main activity, a full-time course of study leading to the award of a higher education qualification issued by that institution. In this context, the higher education institution makes the pre-selection and decides to admit the student to their programmes or not. The higher education institution is also responsible to test the language skills and examine the documentation of the third-country national applicant. However, the University of Luxembourg is confronted in approximately 30% of the international students' applications with false documents (e.g. false diplomas, falsification of apostilles, the person who took the language exam is not the person who is applying or tampering with language results – using official results in the Goethe Zertifikat of another person and amending them with the information of the applicant) and in consequence they are rejected. 3. See table in the attached document for question 3. In the case of the University of Luxembourg, which is the public and largest higher education institution in the country, we mentioned that approximately 30% of the applications of international students are accompanied with false or tampered documents. As it was mentioned in the answer to Q.2 the main concerns in the pre-arrival phase are centered on the documents that the third-country national has to provide. The first line of control is the HEI which processes all the documents for the admission in the HEI. Here the university administration examines the documents related to the scholarship, linguistic capabilities, diplomas, etc. As it was mentioned before, in at least 30% of the applications the SEVE determines that the applicant submitted false or tampered documents so its application for admission is rejected. From the remaining applicants that were admitted they have to submit a list of documents in which one of the most important is the proof of substantial resources. Here is where the Foreigners Department detects that some of the documents submitted are false. In this case the application for temporary authorisation of stay is rejected. Also, the Foreigners Department places attention to the fact if the applicant has already filed in the past other applications for another type of authorisation of stay. Afterwards the Directorate of Immigration will review the status in accordance with the information that the HEI can provide if the student did not show up to courses. In those cases the Directorate of Immigration can proceed to withdraw the residence permit. Moreover, at the time of application for renewal of the residence permit, the Directorate of Immigration, Foreigners Department, checks whether the conditions for obtaining the student's residence permit are still fulfilled. 8. HEI As we mentioned in answer to Q.1, the HEI has the obligation to assessing if all the academic requirements are fulfilled for granting admission as this is a condition sine-qua-non that has to be fulfilled for applying for the temporary authorisation of stay as international student. At the University of Luxembourg and according to the study regulations, course directors are responsible for the establishment of the eligibility criteria for each study programme as well as for the selection and recruitment of students.^[1] In case of approval of a student application, an official letter of admission is issued by the University

These sponsors are checked by the Dutch government and are therefore trusted with the application of students in the pre-arrival phase. The Immigration and Naturalisation service (IND) relies on statements of the sponsor about fulfilment of the criteria of the residence permit by the migrant. Potential misuse is prevented by means of a check of fulfillment of the admission criteria, for which the HEI is responsible as a recognized sponsor: Since 1 June 2013, the Netherlands works with recognized sponsors. A recognized sponsor is an educational institution that is interested in the entry of a third-country national. The sponsor procedure entails that the student can express the intention to study in the Netherlands by submitting a request for admission and enrolment at the educational institution of their choice (the recognized sponsor). The educational institution has the responsibility to oversee the admission procedure and subsequently checks whether the student meets the requirements for the admittance to the HEI and the requirements to reside in the Netherlands. 2. A check of the IND on the final application: The IND checks the application, and takes into account previous residence applications if relevant and if known. The requirements that the student needs to fulfil in order to enter the Netherlands for study purposes can be of importance in the prevention of misuse: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Enrolled in an accredited study with a HEI that is recognized as a sponsor; • Enrolled for a fulltime education that takes place during the day (this could be relevant in the relation to preventing no-show, see AHQ 1 Q5); • Have sufficient resources to be able to maintain themselves for at least one year. 			Alien Act, the sponsor should not send in the application to the IND. The third-country national should also be made aware of the relevant rules and regulations during the recruitment and selection.^[2] The HEIs also gather all necessary information of the applicant. If the HEI submits an application, they submit their own declarations (eigen verklaringen).. These are statements about whether or not the applicant fulfils the requirements. No additional documents are needed.^[3] The Landelijke Gedragscode Commissie oversees whether the recruitment and selection by HEIs takes place in the appropriate way and whether HEIs comply with the Gedragscode internationale student hoger onderwijs (Code of Conduct international students higher education, see AHQ2 Q8).^[4] The Landelijke Gedragscode Commissie handles petitions about a HEI and their actions with regard to the Code of Conduct. These petitions can be submitted to the Commission by anyone that has a direct interest. The Commission can also set up an investigation into a HEI that did not act according to the Code of Conduct. The Commission will set up hearings with the HEI and afterwards takes a decision whether the HEI acted according to the Code of Conduct. If they decide that a HEI did not act according to the Code, they can impose measures, such as reporting or research requirements or a (conditional or provisional) deletion from the register.^[5] To prevent potential misuse, the IND will check the application and will make a decision within 60 days. When the applicant and/or HEI does not meet the conditions, a negative decision will follow. The applicants can register an objection against this decision.^[6] In case of a positive decision, the applicant needs to collect a provisional residence permit (mvv). The mvv procedure is another measure of control before the student travels to the Netherlands. The IND will authorise the diplomatic post in the country of origin in the country of permanent residence to issue a mvv with reservation. The sponsor will be informed of this positive advice, who in turn informs the student. The HEI also informs if the student has to contact the diplomatic post in the country of origin or the country of permanent residence to obtain the mvv personally. The diplomatic post will inform the student as to which documents are required. ^[7] The Visa Service of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs (part of the IND), must authorize the mvv. The student must collect the authorisation within 90 days,^[8] otherwise they will have to apply for a mvv again. ^[9] The applicant needs to collect the mvv in person and needs to provide their biometric information upon collecting the mvv.^[10] From the moment of collection, the student has 90 days to travel to the Netherlands. ^[11] ^[1] EMN, 'Study on the Immigration of International Students to the Netherlands', 2012, https://ec.europa.eu/home-affairs/sites/default/files/what-we-do/networks/european_migration_network/reports/docs/emn-studies/immigration-

In the SR public universities receive subsidies from state budget, while based on the Act on Universities No. 131/2002 Article 89 par. 4 in defining the subsidies for implementation of accredited study programmes among others also the number of students is crucial. In this way it is in the interest of the school to admit maximum number of students also from among foreign students.• Similar problem is the purposeful creation of fields of studies, where also foreign students are admitted regardless of fulfilling the qualitative criteria. The school in this way receives funds from state budget or from foreign students themselves who pay for their studies in case the study programme is conducted in other than Slovak language. The same problem occurs while admitting students for specialised language preparation at the university. It is important to state that from the legal point of view are documents submitted with the application for residence for the purpose of study in line with the law. But the above described cases have consequences to further residence and movement of the TCN in the Schengen area, which is considered problematic from the side of the police.

			DM of the SR in Beirut (representing Lebanon, Syria, Iraq and Jordan) registers in this regard already for a longer period of time efforts of Syrian and Iraq citizens to misuse legal ways to enter the EU, mainly via institutions or organisations providing lifelong education (e.g. Slovak University of Technology in Bratislava, University of Economics Bratislava, University of Zilina in Zilina). The applicants often do not fulfil basic vocational or language criteria for university studies, they were not able to graduate from university in their home country or they graduated from other universities in other countries via correspondence courses online. The profile of applicants shows that the education system in the SR does not verify or verifies only marginally the competencies of applicants for university studies. Number of such “students” already applied for asylum in western European countries. During the meeting at the EU Delegation – SR, CZ and PL informed about considerable increase of applicants for students’ visa for the purpose of language studies at the universities, this in principle serves to them as the opportunity to enter the Schengen area. Another fact to mention in this regard is that until 2017 the SR registered frequent misuse of residences for the purpose of study in connection to then existing legal provisions and functioning of language schools. Applicant for studies at the language school was entitled to temporary residence for the purpose of study. It was proved that in that period number of new language schools were established purposefully, which after signing an agreement with already existing language schools received accreditation and could start to admit students and receive funds from them for their studies. The mere fact that the TCN used this system only as a mean to migrate to Europe was not dealt with by the language schools. As a consequence, new amendment to the Act on Residence of Foreigners (No. 179/2017 from 14 June 2017) was enacted in 2017, where the possibility to grant the temporary residence for the purpose of study for students at the language schools was cancelled. The aim of the amendment was to prevent the misuse of temporary residence for the purpose of study for other purposes, which are connected with e.g. migration of TCN to Schengen area and illegal work which represent security risk. In practice there were registered number of cases of misuse of this type of temporary residence. From when this amendment entered into force the students at language schools are issued national visa, which entails less possibilities to move through the Schengen area for the TCN as it was the case with the temporary residence. The same amendment introduced also the obligation to study at the language school for at least 25 lecturing hours/week. Before the amendment the number of lessons was not regulated and there were cases when the TCN had a temporary residence for the purpose of study and took only 5 lessons or less per week at the language school. The practice showed that after introducing these changes the number of granted temporary residences for the purposes of study in connection with the language education at the language schools decreased and the number

In the SR in the area of combating misuse of residence for the purpose of study the priority is given to the pre-arrival phase. This is a more economically favourable and effective solution, when it is consequently not necessary e.g., to invest means to measures connected to return, etc. 8. Information on potential misuse of residence for the purpose of study in the pre-arrival phase are gained from number of sources and based on number of assessments, e.g.: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. 			risks Intelligence services – considering the security risks, analytical activity, etc. 11. Cooperation with HEI in the pre-arrival phase is only on the level of rather ad-hoc consultations and counselling from the side of the police authority. This mainly concerns own initiative of schools in case they are accepting higher number of foreign students and they are interested in getting further information, they are contacting the police authority and consult the admission mechanism of international students and the related opportunities, risks and challenges. 12. As an example of good practice from the side of police in this area cooperation with schools can be mentioned. Representatives from the Bureau of Border and Foreign Police are regularly taking part in the meetings of prorectors of universities for international relations. Good practice is the cooperation with particular universities or faculties, where higher number of international students are admitted – during the meetings concrete cases, risks and challenges related to the admission of international students are discussed. Good practice is also the activity of some faculties, where their representatives travel to countries of origin and interviews with applicants are conducted directly there. There were no research or evaluation reports conducted on this topic in the SR.
